Dog Awakens Mokena Doctor As Home Burns

The barking and cries of his pet dog aroused Dr. E. G. McMahan of Mokena from his slumbers Monday midnight to find the rooms filled with smoke. Dressing quickly he ran out doors and was horrified to see flames breaking thru the roof about a chimney on his home.

He ran to the home of Fire Chief Herman Schweser several blocks away and aroused him. The fire siren was next brought in action and in a few minutes nearly half of the village folks were at the scene of the fire.

The fire was confined to an upper room in the north wing. Many willing hands carried out part of the household goods and office furniture in the yard and to the adjoining home of Mrs. Rose Moriarty.

Much credit is due to the volunteer fire department. They got on the scene quickly but were handicapped by two things: first the hose cart has not been greased in ages and was a hard pull; after two leads of fire hose were attached to a fire plug across the street from the burning building and the two streams played on the flames, the pressure died down. It was found there was only six feet of water in the water tower. The pump at the pumping station was started up and the pressure was soon restored. The flames, had made too much headway when they were first seen and the house was doomed from the beginning. The need of a fire truck was very plain to everyone at the fire.

The building burned to the ground and the flames burned on for over two hours before the structure was entirely reduced to ashes. A defective chimney is thought to have caused the fire. The building was an old landmark, having been built by Nicholas Volk about 40 years ago and was built of oak and black walnut. It was owned for a while by the late Christ Bechstein and later by the late Chas. Moriarty. His widow sold the property to Dr. McMahan about two years ago. The loss is estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000 covered by insurance.

The fact that the wind was blowing from the northwest was all that saved the new bungalow of Wm. Lee from burning. The new house was only 25 feet west of the burning building. The rains of the past week had dampened the roofs of all adjoining buildings so there was no danger from the flying sparks and live embers.

Dr. McMahan has opened a temporary office in an upper room in the home of Mrs. Lizzie Moriarty on Front street and it is understood has also secured living rooms in the same place.

Mokena Girl Hurt In Auto Smashup

Miss Florence Shevlin of Mokena figured in a serious auto accident at New Lenox last Thursday night. She was riding with a Mr. Wiley of Joliet in a Ford coupe. Mr. Wiley was just leaving the Colonial dance hall grounds and turning onto the Lincoln Highway when a car going west and driven by two drunken bums came down the highway from the east and crashed into the Ford coupe. The occupants of both cars were injured, but Miss Shevlin was hurt the worst. Flying glass cut a deep gash in her face which required seven stitches to close. She was otherwise cut and bruised. She was taken to a Joliet hospital and taken home Friday.

Deputy A. Walsh arrested the drunks who were from Joliet and turned them over to the county officers. They gave their addresses as Scott street and were held under $500 bonds each. After the crash broken bottles of moonshine were found scattered over the pavement. Both cars were badly wrecked.

The Lincoln highway near the A. Walsh filling station in New Lenox was the scene of another serious auto accident a week ago when Harry Hendrixson residing east of New Lenox was badly hurt. He was driving an Overland and was coming from the Rock Island depot. Just as he turned on the Lincoln way his engine died and a car driven by a Mr. Carlson crashed into him. Mr. Hendrixson suffered a broken nose and injuries to the roof of his mouth. Carlson escaped unhurt. Both cars were damaged.

Drilling New Radio Stars

The following interesting writeup appeared in a recent issue of "The Edison Round Table" in regard to Chic Perkins King of Palos Park: "The Edison Dramatic Players expect to start active work in the very near future. Chic Perkins-King has been engaged to direct and coach the players. She is a whirlwind at directing amateurs, and knows just how to wake up the slumbering talent and bring it to the surface in a remarkable manner."

"She is possessed of a charming personality and has the happy faculty of radiating good humor, which seems to be contagious with those who come within the scope of her presence. She knows stage technique and is a master in the art of reading and expression."

"Chic-Perkins King comes from an old theatrical family; and has been a star for a number of years herself, playing in all the principal cities. During the past eight years she has devoted all her time to directing."

"She will have classes two or three times a week and the players who develop sufficiently will have an opportunity to appear on the 'air' at Edison Studio, KYW. Here is an opportunity to achieve fame through your own Edison Club."

A CORRECTION

In Mr. Uhl's last article "The Relation of the Parent to the School" the sentence reading "These goals could be defined and united in the Parent-Teachers Organization" should have read "These goals could be defined and unified in the Parent-Teachers Organization."

GAS MAINS ARE BEING LAID AT TINLEY PARK

Tinley Park is beginning to realize now that the long talked of gas service is going to be a reality before very long as the Public Service Company has unloaded three carloads of gas mains here and have a big string of the mains all welded together and ready to lay in the village soon as the weather permits. Soon as the mains are laid here the work will be continued to Mokena and Frankfort. It is probable that all these towns will be supplied with gas by next spring if not sooner. A wonderful improvement for all these communities and will be a big factor in their upbuilding.

Reserve your date for the one big hop of the season, the big dance to be given by the Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department at the Saenger hall, Tinley Park on Thanksgiving night, November 25th. The proceeds go for the benefit of the fire truck fund.

Mrs. George Hartman underwent an operation Monday at the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago for an inward goitre. She is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Hayes has been visiting in Chicago.

Norbein Simon visited in Chicago Tuesday.

The village water users have been installing water meters so that they will be ready for the new water ordinance which goes into effect the first of the year. So far 103 meters have been installed.

Officer Fred Schmiedeknecht reports very few requests from the knights of the road for shelter in his hotel so far.

A party of Tinley Park men have been duck hunting along the Illinois river at Henry, Illinois. What luck they had we have not learned.

A box social and achievement meeting was held at the Tinley Park school house Tuesday. There was a good attendance and all had a fine time.

Mrs. Carl Goebel entertained the buncos club this week. The usual big time was enjoyed.

Wm. Stockman has taken up a job driving a bakery wagon in Chicago.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schilling and Miss Clara Kampe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ehler Kampe were united in marriage at the Sedan Prairie Lutheran church a week ago Sunday, Rev. Mr. Heiber performing the ceremony, which was the last service of this kind he was to perform as he has retired from the ministry.

Mr. Schaefer who was recently kicked by a horse is getting along as well as can be expected.

John Schmidt, former highway commissioner of Bremen township, and lately flagman at one of the R. I. Crossings in Blue Island met with a serious accident one day last week. He was standing on the crossing holding up his stop flag as a train was approaching when an auto driven by an apparently moonshine filled driver ran him down, breaking an arm and a leg. From what could be learned the driver escaped.

The Don C. Hall Medicine Co., of Mokena concluded their engagement at the community hall Saturday night.

Mrs. Wm. Funk held a buncos party Tuesday night at her home for the benefit of the Lutheran church at Oak Forest. There was a very large attendance and neat sum realized.

SEDAN PRAIRIE PASTOR RETIRES

A familiar and interesting character has passed from this section in the retirement of Rev. Mr. Heiber from the ministry and pastorate of the Sedan Prairie Lutheran church, having served this congregation continuously for fifty three years. He has moved to Washington Heights to make his home with his children.

Rev. Mr. Trenow of Nebraska has accepted the call to serve the Sedan Prairie pastorate and will be installed next Sunday.

We are very thankful for the new set of geographical maps which our school board has added to our school equipment. The new subdivision on the South East corner of 95th St. and 64th Ave., is progressing nicely and will soon be ready for its grand opening. We are glad to see this move on our corner as it is greatly improving the appearance of our community. The old Schoonveld cottage has been moved and is being transformed into an attractive real estate office.

The Oak Lawn P. P. Teacher's Association met in the School on Friday afternoon, Nov. 5th at 3 o'clock. Miss Skinner's room gave a very interesting reading. We had three very interesting speakers. Mr. Leyman gave many good points on bound and loose leaf encyclopedias.

STEREOPHONIC LECTURE

On Wednesday evening Nov. 10, we enjoyed a very interesting Stereophonic lecture in the school auditorium, under the auspices of the Oak Lawn P. T. A. A short introductory program to commemorate Armistice Day, was given by the children of Mrs. Kreton's and Miss Skinner's rooms.

The meeting was opened by the audience joining with the children in singing "America." This was followed by "Good Evening To You" and "Pack All Your Troubles In Your Old Kit-bag and Smile, Smile Smile." Ruth Winters then gave a reading "To The Unknown Soldier" by Laughlin.

Mrs. Wetz, who we all know and have seen some of her wonderful nature slides before, showed us some more very interesting ones. While they were on the screen Mrs. Wetz told the stories about them. A greater part of the pictures were taken around Oak Lawn, Palos Park and the Dunes of Indiana and Michigan. They taught us many things that we are going to look for in the Spring.

The next meeting of the Oak Lawn P. T. A. will meet at the school on Friday, December 3rd at 3 o'clock. It will be a cup and saucer shower so that we may have our own dishes. Don't forget to come!! Don't forget to bring cup and saucer.

NEW LENOX TO VOTE ON SCHOOL

New Lenox citizens are much interested in the special election to be held there this Saturday afternoon to vote on the proposition of building a new school house on the site occupied by the present building, also for the issuance of bonds for the sum of $26,000. The polls will be open from noon until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Several months ago New Lenox voted on the proposition of a new school building and school grounds and both propositions were defeated. The voters at that time felt the cost of both would be a burden on them.

That New Lenox with its ever increasing population is in need of a new school is the consensus of opinion. At present over 100 pupils are enrolled and three teachers are now in charge. The capacity of the present building is being taxed to the utmost. The present building has been the Alma Mater of most of the older residents of the village and is a landmark of the community. In its day the present building filled the school needs of the community, but with a continual increase of the number of students enrolled it is proving inadequate for the present day and therefore the demand for a new school house.

Salina Baker is much indisposed with chilblains and ingrowing toenails.

Our up to date store keeper, Norton, has received a barrel of New Orleans molasses for candy pullings this winter.

Deacon Hawkins was not in the amen corner at church last Sunday to lead in prayer. He and his wife had a fallin' out because she cut her corns with his razor.

A rag man was in our midst yesterday, but none of our citizens had any rags to spare.

Bill Blithers went to Chicago last Saturday to get some court plaster for his base drum.

Arminia Jones has been practicing the new song entitled "Silver Thread Among the Gold" every night, but has been much disturbed by the cats in the neighborhood joining in.

We have had some fine weather for pitching horse shoes.

The tenth annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross will close on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25th. Oak Lawn is still considerably short of its quota, and Mrs. G. F. Mann, Chairman of the Oak Lawn district will be very glad to receive your subscription. In a cause as worthy as that of the Red Cross, subscriptions should be voluntary.

Those not attending the Sunday evening suppers given by the Community Club are missing a real treat. The supper last Sunday evening under the management of Mrs. Edith Exter was particularly good. The next supper will be given Nov. 28th. Mrs. Thos. Wilson will have charge.

Have you seen the Posters for the Oak Lawn Community Club dance on Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th at the school auditorium? They are a work of art and are prepared by Mrs. W. A. Hopkins. We understand that particularly good music has been obtained for this dance, and a good time is promised all.

Additional Oak Lawn items will be found on page 4, column 3 of this issue.

MOKENA P. T. A.

Every month there will be an article printed in regard to what the Parent-Teachers Association met Mokena P. T. A. is accomplishing.

The regular meeting of the Mokena P. T. A. was held Tuesday evening, Nov. 9th at the school house. Before the business meeting the guests were entertained by the pupils and teachers in a varied program, featuring the brand new glee club and other musical selections and readings. The program was greatly appreciated and it is to be hoped that there will be more of the kind.

A membership committee has been appointed with Mrs. Rose Moriarty as chairman. This committee is making a house to house canvass to interest everyone, whether they have children in school or not, in the association. They report 24 paid memberships and a great many more are anxious to belong to the association. The committee hopes to triple that number by the next meeting.

The Association is sponsoring a dance on Thanksgiving Eve and will be glad to welcome every one. You will feel right at home.

The Association has raised their dues from 25 cents to 50 cents a year. That will enable the association to do more, for every organization needs some financial backing. Ten cents out of every fifty is sent to the state association and five of that ten is sent to the national association. This goes to finance the publication charges on the literature sent to the many different associations.

The two big aims of the Association are, first to carry on constructive work for better parenthood, better homes, better schools and better communities. Second: to co-operate with the principal and the teachers in promoting the best interests of the school and community.

The Association is one big happy family and finds it well worth while working together for these two big aims.

The meetings are held the second Tuesday of every month. You will find every meeting well worth while. Just remember the date and let's see you at our next meeting which is on Dec. 14th at 8:00 p. m.

MRS. DORETHA GEUTHER, AGED 75, DIES IN CHICAGO

London society women are up in arms over the "lying mirrors of Mayfair." The expression is their own. It was coined to designate the trick looking-glasses which have been placed in many fashion salons to make plump girls look slim.

What a splendid world this is when all
The hills are green in May,
When the Bob White whistles his morning call,
And winter is far away;
When the wind makes music among the reeds

When the eager sprouts spring forth from the seeds
And the clouds are high and light;
When the trees and the hedges are full of song
And lovers drop into rhyme
—But—
It remains a pretty fair world along
About Thanksgiving time.

It's a splendid world to the fair June bride
And the hopeful graduate;
To the maid who stands at her lover's side
In the moonlight at the gate;
It's a splendid world when we sit and dream
In the shade of a friendly tree
And learn the song of a tinkling stream
That is seeking a far-off sea;
It's a splendid world when the lark's glad song
Makes the morning seem sublime
—But—
It remains a pretty fair world along
About Thanksgiving time.

Day Is Treasured Heirloom for All True Americans

Proclamations Not Needed to Turn Hearts to Giving Thanks for Mercies.

Thanksgiving day is at hand. The President of the most favored nation on the earth has issued his proclamation, and the governors of the various states, following his example, have told of the bountiful harvests and heaven's high favor. From our magistrates as well as from our hearts comes the command to be thankful for our great blessings.

But the hundred and odd millions of people in the United States do not need a reminder of the day or any official command to celebrate it. The spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers on the desolate coast of Cape Cod exists as an heirloom in the hearts of the American people. It is one of the first things that lay hold upon and graft themselves upon the character of the races that come from abroad to make the new world their home.

They may have little to be thankful for, yet the day becomes a festival, even if the purse be scanty and the larder be light. Three centuries have passed since the first Thanksgiving day was celebrated in America, and ever since it has been a day of blessing for rich and poor alike. It has been a day when those to whom the blessings of plenty have come have given thanks for their own piteous store, while the unfortunate among God's people have rendered thankful thanks for the charity that remembers the poor.

Day of Rejoicing.

On Thanksgiving day the homes of those with fortune blessed in this great nation ring with the merry shout of children and the graver gayety of the old folks, while tables groaning under mammoth turkeys, set in celery and cranberry sauce, and glistening gravy, and spiced pickles and plum pudding, will subdue the appetites of the very hungriest.

In other homes not so elegant, but with contentment blessed, there will be turkey, also—with not so many "fixings," to be sure, but turkey, for all that, with white meat for happy mother and a wing for father, and the remaining wing and the drumstick amicably distributed among the children. The wishbone will be laid away above the parlor door to dry.

In this home, too, there will be guests—the friend from the country; the store friend, whose relatives are eating turkey far away; the homeless bachelor, who works with father in the shop, and has no one else with whom to eat turkey; the married son or daughter, with the wee grand-children, which makes mother feel that she is old, although no one else would think so to look at her.

Charitable Duties.

Then in homes still more humble, where turkey is still too great a luxury, a better bit of beef than usual will be set by, and a mince pie will afford delight to stomachs unaccustomed to other delicacies.

But there will be some to whom no

Thanksgiving will come, except through the kindness of the charitable—children of the alleys, gaunt-eyed and already hopeless in their poverty, asking with mute anguish to be fed, and devouring greedily with their eyes the good things before the doors of the grocers and butchers; whole families shivering in the desolation of fireless homes. All these plead for the hand of help, and while the charitable societies will do much, each individual by themselves could do more.

So let us, who have reason to be thankful, seize the opportunity to show thankfulness by helping those who know not what it is to be grateful, having nothing to be grateful for. Let us not selfishly thank God for His mercies to us and remain ourselves unmerciful.

HARVEST

The earth has rolled around again and harvest time is here.
The glory of the seasons and the crown of all the year.
Let us voice our thanks and praises in a chorus of good cheer.
For it is Thanksgiving day.

For the early crops and later,
For the lesser fruits and greater,
All give thanks to our Creator,
For it is Thanksgiving day.

We've found the meaning of the word,
Giving day, Thanksgiving day.
By gratitude our hearts are stirred,
Giving day, Thanksgiving day.

Thanksgiving is our theme, you know,
And while our thanks to God we owe,
We owe our giving here below,
Giving day, Thanksgiving day.
—Carolyn Wells, in the Kansas City Star.

Imported Birds May*Replace the Turkey

An experimental turkey farm has been established at Glendale, in the dry region of Arizona, by the United States Department of Agriculture to stimulate interest in turkey raising. The industry has declined greatly in the last 25 years. Scientific production methods are to be developed on this farm, and studies made of the turkey disease known as "blackhead," a mysterious malady which wipes out entire flocks.

In the event of failure of these experiments, other birds, which have been introduced from South America and Mexico, may ultimately replace the domestic turkey made famous as an offering of Thanksgiving by the early pilgrims. One of these is the South American ocellated turkey, which has plumage like a peacock. Another is the chachalaca turkey from Mexico and Honduras.

The domesticated turkey is now heading toward extinction. Breeding stocks have decreased from 6,600,000 birds in 1900 to around 3,500,000. New England raises scarcely enough to meet local demands.

Farms in the East have grown them usually as sidelines, individual flocks rarely exceeding 100 turkeys. In parts of southern California turkeys are herded like sheep on the open range in flocks of 1,000 or more, tended by men on horseback.

Problems

Relics of Lafayette*in Western College

Lafayette college, chartered in 1820 and named in honor of the great Frenchman who did such great service for this country, has recently come into possession of a great quantity of Lafayette material in the shape of letters, portraits and other mementoes of the general. There are 1,100 pieces in all, a large part of which consists of steel engravings and other portraits of Lafayette and the others who came with him to this country, and there are many interesting mementoes of his second visit here. There is a particularly valuable letter written when he was in camp at Whitmarsh in which references are made to Washington and others with whom he had been thrown since his arrival in this country. This letter still wears the red seal with the imprint of the ring which had been presented to him by General Washington. The collection was made by Warren Cady Crane of New York and was acquired by the college through the efforts of some friends who contributed the money to buy it.

Preserve Armistice Coach

The famous railway coach in which the armistice was signed in November, 1918, will shortly, thanks to the generosity of an unnamed American, become a permanent memorial at the "Armistice Crossroads" at Rethondes, where the historic act took place. The interior of the coach will be restored as nearly as possible to its appearance at the time Marshal Foch received the German emissaries. French subscribers have guaranteed a permanent upkeep fund.

Not Making Time

The fog was thick and the short-sighted man could not see a yard ahead when he left the office. But he knew every inch of the way to the tram terminus—or thought he did. Ah! at last. He clambered aboard and took his place in the far corner. Time passed, but the tram showed no sign of moving. More time passed. The man grew impatient, and at last rose and addressed a misty figure: "What time do you think this tram will start?" he demanded.

"Tram!" came the answer. "This ain't a tram. You're in a cabman's shelter!"—Toronto Globe.

Most persons have found that the undertaking looks rosier when in the conversational stage.

A Curse

Mrs. Annie Besant, the noted theosophist, said in an interview in New York:

"We theosophists claim no gift of prophecy. The gift of prophecy! It would be a curse rather than a blessing to possess it.

"Think! If you had the gift of prophecy, the first thing you'd ascertain would be the time and circumstances of your own death."

Mrs. Besant paused, then ended: "A look into the future, anyway, would be as unsatisfactory to most of us as a glance at the past."

TRAIASCA REGINA!

Roumania is a country of hills and mountains and fertile plains. If matters were rightly adjusted these plains would support in comfort, the peasants, who make up about 85 per cent of the population. The principal food of the poor people is boiled dried corn. It is said that bread is a luxury. Very few peasants have shoes. Most of them wear rough hides laced around their feet. Seventy per cent of the people are illiterate and yet have contributed largely to the school building fund. In spite of the land reform act passed a few years ago, most of the peasants are obliged to work on the large landed estates for about 25c a day and they are long hard days. As in all poverty stricken countries the children suffer most of all.

When Marie Antoinette, at the beginning of the French Revolution was told that the people were suffering for lack of bread, she sweetly asked, "Why don't they eat cake?"

Courtesy demands that Christian America extend to the gracious, beautiful, talented queen a whole hearted democratic welcome.

But there's something wrong some where.

Hickory creek was very high the forepart of the week due to heavy rains. The dam across the creek in the Brookwood sub-division was partly washed away by the swollen stream which was over its banks.

Considerable work has been done by the McIntosh Real Estate people in their sub-division north of here streets have been laid out and named. It is understood that a road is to be built to run south across Hickory creek to the Lincoln Highway, a bridge is to be built across the creek at the old Gust Schultz place.

R. J. Barr, who owns a large tract of land west of here, formerly the old Bebee farm, is planning to sub-divide this property next spring. This will add much to the development of New Lenox.

Clyde Baston who is in the employ of the Western Union Pole Yards at Brisbane, injured a finger of his left hand about a year ago but the wound never healed and Monday a portion of the finger had to be amputated. The operation took place at Presbyterian hospital, Chicago.

The Boy Scouts met Monday night in the M. E. Church parlors.

Four gas heaters have been installed in the M. E. Sunday School rooms. The rooms have also been curtained off. The Sunday School has grown wonderfully within the last year. Over 100 pupils are now enrolled.

The Missionary Society met at the church Thursday in monthly session. A new furnace has been installed at the M. E. parsonage.

Mrs. Archie Corp visited in Chicago Tuesday.

ORLAND

Friday November 19th, Rudolph Valentino in "Monseur Beaucaire," Sunday November 21st, Bible School at 9:30 a. m.

Morning worship at 10:30 a. m. The sermon is the next in the series on "What We Most Need And How To Get It."

Evening—Special—Extra: This will be an Intercommunity Service in which Orland and Palos Park participate. The Rev. Ray Bond of the Garden Homes M. E. Church, Chicago is expected to give the address. Reverend Paul Sanders of the Worth Community Church will conduct the service. It is expected that the Worth choir will have a part in the services. Do not miss this important meeting. Time 7:30.

On Sunday morning November 28th, Dr. E. G. Schutz, District Supt will preach and immediately following the morning service will conduct the First Quarterly conference.

Sunday evening November the 28th, we will have another surprise. Do not miss it.

At the present writing the parsonage has considerable sickness. Mrs. Setterlund has been under Dr. Shussler's care and is suffering from a rather severe attack of LaGrippe. The boys are still unable to go to school. The parson has been compelled to be nurse and housekeeper both in the present crises.

The installation of the new bathroom at the parsonage has just begun and things will be torn up for some days to come.

The Sunday evening discussion meetings seem to grow in interest. There is a most ready response among those attending the evening pastor feels that some real thinking of a profound nature is manifested among those attending the evening services. The piano recitals have also been appreciated.

Last Sunday morning Miss Minnie Liebstorf of the Worth Community church occupied the Orland M. E. church pulpit and gave a most excellent account of herself according to reports of those who attended the service. The pastor of the Orland M. E. church supplied the pulpit at Worth owing to the absence of Rev. Paul Sanders from his regular appointments for last Sunday. The Orland pastor received a most excellent hearing at Worth and greatly enjoyed the services there.

St. Michael's Church, Orland Park

Two of the Sunday announcements were: The meeting of the Sewing Circle, Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Heatherwick with Mrs. Math. Wagner and Mrs. P. Hostert on the committee, bunco to be played, and the meeting of the Holy Name society in the church basement on Tuesday night. Refreshments to be served. The latter statement, the men agreed, was the only drawback to the announcement.

Five new members joined the men's sodality, Sunday. Rev. Wm. Gorey, however has set the goal at one hundred per cent. A good attendance was registered for Communion Sunday.

The officers of the Altar and Rosary Society announce a Bunco and Euchre party in the church basement, on Saturday, November the 27th. Good prizes, good luncheon and good fun are assured.

The marriage of Miss Augusta Steffen and Mr. Robert Cure will be solemnized at the church on Saturday morning, November the 27th. Will someone please ascertain cost per hundred weight of rice? The new slab of concrete in front of the church was meant not only to give folks a good place to land but also a good "send off."

A Lady Got Three Lamps

—and put them to work in her home

ONE lamp was too ambitious. It did not belong there, because it was only half strong enough. It went out in a blaze of glory in less than forty minutes.

THE second lamp was lazy. It gave only a fourth of the light it should, because it belonged on a lighting system twice as powerful. Science says this lazy lamp will last 1360 years, but it will never in its life do an honest evening's work.

THE third lamp which she received at a Public Service Store was entirely satisfactory. It was of the correct strength for the electricity she was using. It not only gives a cheerful light—not too bright or too weak—but it will probably last for one thousand hours of actual use.

THIS Company's lamp service supplies only standard tested lamps designed for maximum lighting value and economy for this company's system.

How Are You Fixed for Lamps?

60-watt and 100-watt lamps are furnished without charge in exchange for burned-out lamps with glass intact, or for first installations, to all Rate "A" General Lighting Service customers. Other sizes of lamps at reduced prices—as given in the Lamp Exchange Service booklet enclosed with your current statement. This Lamp Exchange Service includes the new improved inside-frosted lamp.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Suggestions for Holiday Shoppers

Lovely Homemade Shade

Scissor painted and "crystalline" lamp shades are going to shed radiant joy in the homes and hearts of many happy recipients this Christmas. These home-made shades are as beautiful as any that can be bought. They are made of handkerchief linen stretched over a wire frame and decorated with designs cut from printed crepe paper. Here is one in which the figures are silhouettes in black. After they are pasted on, the shade is painted over with thin transparent amber sealing-wax paint and, after this is dry, a background in soft yellows, reds and browns, is blended on.

Gay Holiday Aprons

Here is a gift that everyone, from grandma down to the youngest subbed, will rejoice in at Christmas time—and long thereafter. It is a gay and quaint pinafore, made of brilliant, flowered cretonne, bordered and finished with black sateen, and is prettiest in cretonnes having a black background with many-colored garden flowers blooming against it. The black sateen borders the bib and pockets and makes the long shoulder straps.

Useful Silken Ladies

Everywhere in the shops this year there are dainty and fascinating bisque ladies with dignified coiffures and pretty faces, waiting to be dressed in spreading silk skirts. These doll torsos are made in several sizes and are used as shades over electric lights or posed over telephones, bonbon or work baskets and pincushions. Wide taffeta ribbon clothes the blond beauty pictured and the tiniest ribbon flowers adorn her bodice. She is posed over a small wicker basket.

Parchment Torchers

Among other unique devices for softening electric lights are the fashionable parchment torchers which may be bought ready for painting. They may be tinted with soft yellows and reds blended together, or decorated with floral or other decorations. One who is not clever at painting can get beautiful effects by cutting out designs from crepe paper, pasting them on the torcher and then painting over the entire surface with thin, transparent, amber sealing wax paint.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

Mrs. Gust Green of 401 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Rockford, Illinois, found herself in a condition similar to that of Mrs. Kraft. "I was weak and run-down," she writes, "but the Vegetable Compound has helped me and I feel better now. I recommend it to all women who need more strength."

Mrs. Kraft, who saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. ### The Critic

Bobbie Jones, the famous golfer, said at Short Hills the other day:

"Some of these golf critics are too hard on us. They remind me of Andrew Carnegie's caddie."

"Andrew Carnegie was playing clock golf one day, and he was so bad at holding the ball that his caddie gave a laugh and said:

"Shall I get you a shoe horn, sir?"

BARREE, Son of Kazan

Chapter XIV—Continued

—24—

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

(© Doubleday, Page & Co.)
WNU Service

The stranger was looking at Barree. His face was turned away from McTaggart. He said:

"I guess you are right. Let the devil rot. If you're heading for Lac Bain, m'sieu, I'll travel a short distance with you now. It will take a couple of miles to straighten out the line of my compass."

He picked up his gun. McTaggart led the way. At the end of half an hour the stranger stopped, and pointed north.

"Straight up there—a good five hundred miles," he said, speaking as lightly as though he would reach home that night. "I'll leave you here."

He made no offer to shake hands. But in going, he said, "You might report that John Madison has passed this way."

After that he traveled straight northward for half a mile through the deep forest. Then he swung westward for two miles, turned at a sharp angle into the south, and an hour after he had left McTaggart he was once more squatted on his heels almost within arms' reach of Barree.

And he was saying, as though speaking to a human companion:

"So that's what you've been, old boy. A trap robber, eh? An outlaw? And you beat him at the game for two months! And for that, because you're a better beast than he is, he wants to let you die here as slow as you can. An outlaw!" His voice broke into a pleasant laugh, the sort of laugh that warns one, even a beast. "That's funny. We ought to shake hands. Boy, by George, we had! You're a wild one, he says. Well, so am I. Told him my name was John Madison. It ain't. I'm Jim Carvel. And, oh Lord!—all I said was 'Police.' And that was right. It ain't a lie. I'm wanted by the whole corporation—by every damned policeman between Hudson's bay and the Mackenzie river. Shake, old man. We're in the same boat, an' I'm glad to meet you!"

Chapter XV

Jim Carvel held out his hand, and the snarl that was in Barree's throat died away. The man rose to his feet. He stood there, looking in the direction taken by Bush McTaggart, and chuckled in a curious, exultant sort of way. There was friendliness even in that chuckle. There was friendliness in his eyes and in the shine of his teeth as he looked again at Barree. About him there was something that seemed to make the gray day brighter, that seemed to warm the chill air—a strange something that radiated cheer and hope and comradeship just as a hot stove sends out the glow of heat. Barree felt it. For the first time since the two men had come his trap-torn body lost its tenseness; his back sagged; his teeth clicked as he shivered in his agony. To this man he betrayed his weakness. In his blood-shot eyes there was a hungering look as he watched Carvel—the self-confessed outlaw. And Jim Carvel again held out his hand—much nearer this time.

"You poor devil," he said, the smile going out of his face. "You poor devil!"

The words were like a caress to Barree—the first he had known since the loss of Nepesee and Pierrot. He dropped his head until his jaw lay flat in the snow. Carvel could see the blood dripping slowly from it.

"You poor devil!" he repeated.

There was no fear in the way he put forth his hand. It was the confidence of a great sincerity and a great compassion. It touched Barree's head and patted it in a brotherly fashion, and then—slowly and with a bit more caution—it went to the trap fastened to Barree's forepaw. In his half-crazed brain Barree was fighting to understand things, and the truth came finally when he felt the steel jaws of the trap open, and he drew forth his maimed foot. He did then what he had done to no other creature but Nepesee. Just once his hot tongue shot out and licked Carvel's hand. The man laughed. With his powerful hands he opened the other traps, and Barree was free.

For a few moments he lay without moving, his eyes fixed on the man. Carvel had seated himself on the snow-covered end of a birch log and was filling his pipe. Barree watched him light it; he noted with new interest the first purplish cloud of smoke that left Carvel's mouth. The man was not more than the length of two trap-chains away—and he grinned at Barree.

"Screw up your nerve, old chap," he encouraged. "No bones broken. Just a little stiff. Mebbe we'd better—get out."

He turned his face in the direction of Lac Bain. The suspicion was in his mind that McTaggart might turn back. Perhaps that same suspicion was impressed upon Barree, for when Carvel looked at him again he was on his feet, staggering a bit as he gained his equilibrium. In another moment the outlaw had swung the pack-sack from his shoulders and was opening it. He thrust in his hand and drew out a chunk of raw, red meat.

"Killed it this morning," he explained to Barree. "Yearling bull, tender as partridge—and that's as fine a sweetbread as ever came out from under a backbone. Try it!"

He tossed the flesh to Barree. There was no equivocation in the manner of its acceptance. Barree was famished—and the meat was flung to him by a friend. He buried his teeth in it. His jaws crunched it. New fire leaped into his blood as he feasted, but not for an instant did his reddened eyes leave the other's face. Carvel replaced his pack. He rose to his feet, took up his rifle, slipped on his snowshoes, and fronted the north.

"Come on, Boy," he said. "We've got to travel."

It was a matter-of-fact invitation, as though the two had been traveling companions for a long time. It was, perhaps, not only an invitation but partly a command. It puzzled Barree. For a full half minute he stood motionless in his tracks gazing at Carvel as he strode into the north. A sudden convulsive twitching shot through Barree; he swung his head toward Lac Bain; he looked again at Carvel, and a whine that was scarcely more than a breath came out of his throat. The man was just about to disappear into the thick spruce. He paused, and looked back.

"Coming, Boy?"

Even at that distance Barree could see him grinning affably; he saw the outstretched hand, and the voice stirred new sensations in him. It was not like Pierrot's voice. He had never loved Pierrot. Neither was it soft and sweet like the Willow's. He had known only a few men, and all of them he had regarded with distrust. But this was a voice that disarmed him. It was lureful in its appeal. He wanted to answer it. He was filled with a desire, all at once, to follow close at the heels of this stranger. For the first time in his life a craving for the friendship of man possessed Barree. He did not move until Jim Carvel entered the spruce. Then he followed.

The Meat Was Flung to Him by a Friend. He Buried His Teeth in It.

That night they were camped in a dense growth of cedars and balsams ten miles north of Bush McTaggart's trap-line. For two hours it had snowed, and their trail was covered. It was still snowing, but not a flake of the white deluge sifted down through the thick canopy of boughs. Carvel had put up his small silk tent, and had built a fire; their supper was over, and Barree lay on his belly facing the outlaw, almost within reach of his hand. With his back to a tree Carvel was smoking luxuriously. He had thrown off his cap and his coat, and in the warm fireglow he looked almost boyishly young. But even in that glow his jaws lost none of their squareness, nor his eyes their clear alertness.

He rubbed his hands together, and held them out toward the fire. Barree watched his movements and listened intently to every sound that escaped his lips. His eyes had in them now a dumb sort of worship, a look that warmed Carvel's heart and did away with the vast loneliness and emptiness of the night. Barree had dragged himself nearer to the man's feet, and suddenly Carvel leaned over and patted his head.

"I'm a bad one, old chap," he chuckled. "You haven't got it on me—not a bit. Want to know what happened?" He waited a moment, and Barree looked at him steadily. Then

Authors Who Evincd Interest in Cookery

If the stories of Brillat-Savarin which it is proposed to publish in commemoration of his centenary reveal their author to the world as a successful writer of fiction as well as a gastronomic, he may perhaps be regarded as repaying the interest which some noted novelists have taken in matters of the table. Balzac took a keen interest in cookery, as befitted a man of gigantic appetite. So also did George Sand, whose cookery must have been pretty good, since it was reputed to be as exciting as her romances. Joseph Conrad, as he admitted in connection

Carvel went on, as if speaking to a human, "Let's see—it was five years ago, five years this December, just before Christmas time. Had a dad. Fine old chap, my dad was. No mother—just the dad, an' when you added us up we made just One. Understand? And along came a white-striped skunk named Hardy and shot him one day because dad had worked against him in politics. Out an' out murder. An' they didn't hang that skunk! No, sir, they didn't hang him. He had too much money, an' too many friends in politics, an' they let 'im off with two years in the penitentiary. But he didn't get there. No—selp me God, he didn't get there!"

Carvel was twisting his hands until his knuckles cracked. An exultant smile lighted up his face, and his eyes flashed back the firelight. Barree drew a deep breath—a mere coincidence; but it was a tense moment for all that.

"No, he didn't get to the penitentiary," went on Carvel, looking straight at Barree again. "Yours truly knew what that meant, old chap. He'd have been pardoned inside a year. An' there was my dad, the biggest half of me, in his grave. So I just went up to that white-striped skunk right there before the judge's eyes, an' the lawyers' eyes, an' the eyes of all his dear relatives an' friends—and I killed him! And I got away. Was out through a window before they woke up, hit for the bush country, and have been eating up the trails ever since. An' I guess God was with me, Boy. For He did a queer thing to help me out—more before last, just when the Mounties were after me hardest an' it looked pretty black. Man was found drowned down in the Reindeer country, right where they thought I was cornered; an' the good Lord made that man look so much like me that he was buried under my name. So I'm officially dead, old chap. I don't need to be afraid any more so long as I don't get too familiar with people for a year or so longer, and 'way down inside me I've liked to believe God fixed it up in that way to help me out of a bad hole. What's your opinion? Eh?"

He leaned forward for an answer. Barree had listened. Perhaps, in a way, he had understood. But it was another sound than Carvel's voice that came to his ears now. With his head close to the ground he heard it quite distinctly. He whined, and the whine ended in a snarl so low that Carvel just caught the warning note in it. He straightened. He stood up then, and faced the south. Barree stood beside him, his legs tense and his spine bristling.

After a moment Carvel said:

"Relatives of yours, old chap. Wolves."

He went into the tent for his rifle and cartridges.

Barree was on his feet, rigid as hewn rock, when Carvel came out of the tent and for a few moments Carvel stood in silence watching him closely. Would the dog respond to the call of the pack? Did he belong to them? Would he go—now? The wolves were drawing nearer. They were not circling as a caribou or a deer would have circled, but were traveling straight—dead straight for their camp. The significance of this fact was easily understood by Carvel. All that afternoon Barree's feet had left a blood-smell in their trail, and the wolves had struck the trail in the deep forest, where the falling snow had not covered it. Carvel was not alarmed. More than once in his five years of wandering between the Arctic and the Height of Land he had played the game with the wolves. Once he had almost lost, but that was out in the open Barren. Tonight he had a fire, and in the event of his firewood running out he had trees he could climb. His anxiety just now was centered in Barree. So he said, making his voice quite casual, "You aren't going, are you, old chap?"

If Barree heard him he gave no evidence of it. But Carvel, still watching him closely, saw that the hair along his spine had risen like a brush, and then he heard—growing slowly in Barree's throat—a snarl of ferocious hatred. It was the sort of snarl that had held back the Factor from Lac Bain, and Carvel, opening the breach of his gun to see that all was right, chuckled happily. Barree may have heard the chuckle. Perhaps it meant something to him, for he turned his head suddenly and with flattened ears looked at his companion.

JOSHUA RENEWING THE COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Josh. 24:1-25. GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve;...but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Israelites Make a Promise.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Covenant at Shechem.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Stand for God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of Covenants.

I. Joshua Rethinking the History of the Nation (vv. 1-13).

This was his farewell address, the last message to the people. He began with Abraham's breaking with his religion, homeland, relatives and friends, at the command of God, and traced their history in Egypt, their deliverance at the hands of Moses and Aaron through the wilderness journey, and showed God's providential dealing in the crossing of the Jordan at flood tide, and their marvelous blessings now in the land solely by the favor of God.

II. The People Elect the Lord as Their God (vv. 14-24).

Joshua knew that the people were liable to lapse into idolatry, therefore he reviewed before them the history of God's goodness to them, and appealed to their sober choice as to whether they were going to remain faithful to him.

1. He appealed to them for a rational consideration and judgment (v. 15).

He placed before them four candidates upon which they could vote according to their relative merits.

(1) The Lord.

(2) The gods worshiped by their ancestors in Chaldea.

(3) The Egyptian gods.

(4) The gods of the Amorites.

Having placed before them these candidates, he urged them to make a rational choice.

2. His own example in the matter (v. 15).

He followed his appeal with his own example. He told them that his mind was already made up. He associated his household with himself. He knew just where they would stand. His decision was not a hasty one. It had been talked over at home, therefore he voiced the united sentiment of his family.

3. The response of the people (vv. 16-18).

Joshua's earnest appeal, accompanied by his own example had its desired effect. When they calmly considered the claims of the Lord as against the other gods, they saw the overwhelming evidence in favor of the God of their fathers.

They assigned the following reasons for their choice:

(1) The Lord brought us out of Egypt (v. 17).

(2) He did great signs in our sight (v. 17).

(3) He preserved us in all the way we went (v. 17).

(4) He drove from before us all the people (v. 18).

It would have been very foolish, not to say criminal, after they had experienced all this at His hands to have turned Him down.

4. Joshua reminds them of who God is (v. 19).

Wishing them to think more seriously and deeply upon the matter, Joshua drew a somewhat dark picture of God's attributes which were most unattractive to them.

(1) He showed them that God is a Holy God.

(2) That He is a jealous God. He could not therefore tolerate a rival.

(3) That He will not forgive.

He did not mean by this that He was an unforgiving God, but that His nature was such that unless they followed Him fully, He would become the means of their destruction.

5. Joshua demands sincerity on their part (vv. 20-23).

He wished to have practical proof of their profession. He no doubt knew full well that some had idols yet in their possession.

6. The people's position (v. 24).

They cannot avoid their determination to serve God and obey His voice.

III. The People Enter into a

Infectious Diseases

The Public Health service says that extensive investigations and surveys made by the medical authorities have shown that the prevalence of infectious diseases among civilized nations is infinitely less than among inhabitants of uncivilized countries.

Barber Philatelist

A London barber spends all his odd moments collecting stamps, and the walls of his shop are papered with stamps of all descriptions. He is also an art critic, his advice being sought when a person desires to purchase what is claimed to be a valuable picture.

Today.

There is a thing called yesterday, but that is only the dust-bin at the door, into which we cast our refuse, our failures, our worn-out souls. There is a thing called tomorrow, bursting with far better things than those which we have discarded. But in today the whole passionate force of the universe is poured—and therefore today is marvellous.—S. P. B. Maile.

Sahara Once Fertile?

Arabian tradition is that water was still abundant when the Arabs first entered the Sahara in the Seventh century, and that the drying-up process was not completed until the Thirteenth century.

Glorious Contemplation

An English parliamentary candidate wound up a frenzied oration as follows: "Gentlemen, the glorious victory which will swamp our opponents when the eve of the election dawns upon us will re-echo in words of gold through the corridors of time, until the last grand trump shall sound through the valleys on the mountaintops."

Triumph of Genius.

In 1547, when he was more than seventy, Michael Angelo began his greatest work—St. Peter's church, in Rome. He refused rewards, saying that he worked for the love of God alone.

Man and the Flowers.

The fragrance of plants is not for man's pleasure; it is a means of attracting insects to fertilize them. The object of many present-day florists is to improve a flower in its coloring, size and substance—in short to "paint the lily." They cannot improve the fragrance, which is perhaps the reason they seem to care so little for its disappearance under their handling.—Exchange.
